

tle, was a relative—nephew we believe—of Wellington, and he and his command fought under Wellington in Spain when Joseph Bonaparte was trying to hold his throne there. They never fought against Napoleon, but against the marshals that Napoleon sent there to try to save the throne for his brother.

About one million immigrants from the Old World will land on our shores this year. Of these, probably half will be women, of these probably half will come depending upon their own labor to make for themselves a livelihood. These the Government should take into custody and should say to them, "You are all right; we love you exceedingly,—so much so that we cannot bear to think of your suffering because of not knowing how to earn an honest living. We have a school across over in Jersey. You must go there and learn how to make a cup of coffee, a biscuit, to boil an egg and broil a beefsteak, before you go out to earn a living. With these accomplishments you will each be looked upon as an angel, without them as a d—d nuisance."

Western men can hardly comprehend some of the work that is going on in the East. The rebuilding, practically, of the Union and old Central Pacific roads has seemed like a big thing, but the Pennsylvania Central Railroad company has entered upon a $200,000,000 expenditure to give the company terminal facilities in New York, to extend immensely its facilities in Chicago and to practically parallel the old Baltimore & Ohio through line. That gives an idea of the growing traffic of the East and makes more reasonable the proposition that it will not be long until all residents will have to remove from New York City and give up the whole island to the insatiable demands of Commerce. Boston, Philadelphia, and Baltimore are all growing, but the maelstrom of Commerce is Manhattan Island.

The present able City Council has finally awarded the contract for the erection of the new city pesthouse, to take the place of the filthy den of disgrace where smallpox patients are at present imprisoned. A statement of the awful conditions at the pesthouse was first made in this paper, and it is gratifying to realize that this fight for civilization and decency has finally been effective. At the same time it is a source of surprise that the Eight Immaculates have broken their long period of retrogression and obstruction by allowing this very much needed improvement to be made.

KAWUT NIXIE.

The Pacific Commercial Advertiser, of Honolulu, has a communication from Hon. Thomas Fitch, which is a touching obituary on the lately widely-known deceased dog, Nixie, the black and tan which was so long the pride and consolation of Mrs. Fitch. It is after the manner of the tributes paid the loved and lost. Nixie had all the graces and virtues that can ever be looked for in one of his species, and these were all subordinate to an intellect which was the envy and admiration of all who knew him. His standing was well described by a child in Honolulu, who said: "I know Mrs. Fitch; she is the lady that belongs to Nixie." Nixie lived a long and blameless life, but his summons came and was so imperative that neither friends nor physicians could secure to him a postponement. The closing words of the notice are clear reminders of Tom Fitch, as follows:

"Nixie passed away with his dying gaze fastened upon his mistress; his body sleeps in the Moana Hotel grounds under a cocoa palm, where the speech of the waves makes eternal music, and if there is a hereafter for any dog, his little soul is now wagging its way to a front seat among the angels."

WHERE ARE THE TANKS OF YESTERDAY?

(Version Villon Might Have Used During His Tavern Days.)

I wonder in what Isle of Booze
Apollo breathes the malted air;
Where Bacchus takes a drunken snooze
And noses red as jasper glare—
Where sashes linger debonnaire
The breeze has blown them all astray.

Say where the great Semiramis Lies doped within her tomb; and if
The booze great Caesar daily drank
With Cleopatra's brews compare;
Where Alexander got his share
The wind has blown it all away;
And that vast head and dreamy stare
We won from jags of yesterday.

Where is that jug of Herod's gin,
Or Holland's in its beauty rare;
The grist volcanic Sappho sold
And scalped us—more than we could bare:—
And liquid earthquake, morn's despair,
The wind has blown them all away;
And throats more parched than potter's spoils
Where are the tanks of yesterday?

Alas for flivers, pair by pair,
The wine has filched them all away;
In vain we search our pockets bare
Where is the coin of yesterday?

THE USEFUL EGG.

An egg is a wonderful thing. When it is fresh it may be poached, and when it isn't it may be used for the purpose of theatrical criticism. And the older it is the more potent it is as an expression of opinion.—New York Sun.

THE LACE HOUSE CO.

A POPULAR OPERA.

If you want the recipe for that popular opera,
Known to the world as a musical farce,
Take a librettist who won't care a copper; a Lyric or two you can't possibly parse;
The brass of a pugilist fresh from a victory;
Jokes made that were forged by pre-Ademite
Man;
German comedians (that's contradictory);
Dainty soubrettes who have passed mortal
span;
Tunes that would shame the most ignorant
musicoes
Sung by a rouge-pot that flirts with a fan—
A tenor whose sang-froid's as fearful as Bouc-cault's;
Scenery painted when earth first began;
A hit at some perfectly harmless old quackery
Then a good angel—a liberal backer, he
Don't know a thing, but is good at expenditure—Critics from Gotham to surely defend it, your Poorest of voices, put into star parts—
And hang any plot so you've two lovesick hearts.
Take of these elements all that is fusible,
Melt them all down in a pipkin or crucible,
Set them to simmer and out of the scum
A musical farce is the residuum.

Caller—So the doctor brought you a little baby sister the other night, eh?

Tommy—Yes; I guess it was the doctor done
it. Anyway, I heard him tellin' pa some time ago 'at if pa didn't pay his old bill he'd make trouble for him.—St. Louis Mirror.

Wigg—So you and your wife have buried your differences, eh?

Tigg—Yes; the funeral of her mother took place two weeks ago.—Kansas City Journal.

WHY

Do we offer a good seven room brick and frame residence,
city water in house, bath, two halls, three closets, pantry,
every room in prime condition, gravel walks, cesspool stable and out-building; Lot 50x145 feet to alley, sixty rods from street car; a most delightful view of the valley; about six blocks from the Temple block; at the unheard of price of $1650—$650 cash and the balance easy? Simply because we have got to sell it at once and we want you to know it.

DO

You imagine for a moment that we would offer a nice vacant lot 20x10 rods, east front, city water, block and a half from street car, just suitable for a fine row of cottages, at the price of $2000 unless we knew it was a snap?

YOU

Must remember that we push our best bargains, and hurry up sales—always to the front for instance. We offer two acres of land, a good six room frame house, a fine lot of bearing fruit trees, two splendid arlesian wells and springs, all of the finest quality, and suitable for trout raising; we have 40,000 young trout, chicken houses and chicken runs, stable, fish hatchery. This is an opportunity for the right man or woman—$3250.

DELAY

Is a virtue when its not carried to excess, but when one needs a home and can get what they want at a reasonable price, is it wisdom to delay until prices get beyond you?
See this—a good five room frame cottage, shade trees, lawn,
city water in house, cesspool; Lot 2x10 rods, south front, east side, ten blocks from business center, nice home, $1900.
